Subject: RE: Truck Convoy Downtown Ottawa

Bruno,

I just had a conversation with Mark N from OPS and it seems that new information has come in over the weekend and this am from policing partners and although unconfirmed OPS is planning a large scale demonstration with >300 vehicles. OPS is planning on an operational deployment period of 3 days from Friday to Sunday 24hrs/day. NCRCC will be activated and the City will be working with Shawn Graham from OPS for the Traffic Management Plan. As you mentioned the information is not yet verified, however it is prudent to plan for a potential for several hundred vehicles coming to Ottawa this weekend. The intent is to protest on the hill however where the vehicles are parked may exceed Wellington – also where they are getting on/off the highway or bridges will be also important.

Based on info provided by Mark a TIMG activation is likely. I have identified you as lead for Traffic Management on this and we will should see an email here engaging us officially from OPS.

Hey Phil,

Here is what we know thus far:

Information is very unreliable – from organizer as it doesn't match what is in social media.

All policing agencies are on board

Dec 4th they (Truckers) came was about 30 people – anticipated more

Policing agencies are doing more investigations and are with us at the table and will share info as provided

Plan to have another meeting this week. "Event date" is currently either Friday 28th or Sat 29 based on I policing intel for arrival in Ottawa.

Another meeting with policing partners this week (Tuesday/Wed).

Roads has already been engaged to clear snow on Wellington from this corridor and then move out – which is a little different from typical. To be better ready when they show up

Our response is intended to be scalable depending on numbers, which are estimates only and we will scale accordingly. Contingencies are in place to scale quickly as required or rather as credible information is provided.

Plan is to facilitate them on the N side of Wellington from Bank to Elgin (500m) and then on S side if required or an additional ST lane. We will ensure one lane open on Wellington at all times for emergencies services (planned).

There is no plan to activate TIMG formally at this point as there are no real tangible numbers to go off of. Staff are aware and will continue to monitor and scale up our response as needed.

Following the meeting on Tuesday/Wed Bruno will provide an update to this email and we may adjust our approach. The real moral of this story is that the information being circulated in the media is for the most part inaccurate according to policing partners which creates planning challenges.

Hi Phil & Kim

PIMR and I would like to know if you anticipate having to strike TIMG for the truck convoy coming to downtown Ottawa in the next couple days? At this time we don't anticipate any specific comms for it, but please let us know if you hear news that could change (route, volume, etc)

Thanks,

Alison Lynch
